According to statistics released by the non-profit Praja Foundation, accidents on Mumbai railways killed and injured the least number in 2020-21 relative to the four years before it. In 2020-21, the city's lifeline lost 370 lives and 269 commuters were wounded. Although the low figures seem to be a direct result of the pandemic-induced lockdown, accidental deaths have been steadily decreasing year after year. The reduction has been attributed to a variety of safety measures, according to railways.

The majority of those deaths occurred in Dahisar-Ram Mandir stations, while the other 68 were in Kurla-Mulund stations. The bulk of commuter injuries were caused by falling off trains, however (36%). Crime on the railways has also decreased by a whopping 92% in 2020-21 relative to the financial year before it. One of the main causes of the pandemic is the shortage of services.

The Maharashtra Railway Police will keep track of missing persons until 2015. However, they have made a significant improvement in their recording method and have begun registering stolen goods as thefts. As a result, the number of theft FIRs in Maharashtra is high as compared to any other Indian state.
